

Welcome to our August issue of Treescape® News.

As we are now in the thick of winter, and being aware of all the extra hazards around us, it's a great time to be sharing some safety news. As is always the case at Treescape®, we've been busy.

I'm really pleased to announce that Treescape® has secured ISO 45001:2018 Occupational Health & Safety Management Systems certification. We are one of the first companies in Australasia to secure this, so that is a great achievement. Well done everyone. ISO 45001:2018 is a global standard, like quality and environmental systems, but it is the first time it has been adopted in our part of the world.

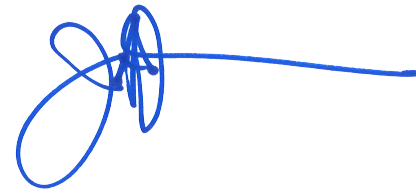

As you can see from our Safety Snapshot, we are continuing to make really good progress against our year end targets, although we did have a bit of an increase in July, but with great safety work such as what Josh, Tom, Andy and Bruce did with some trees at Middlemore Hospital, we know we are on the right track.

On the people front, there are great articles about our climbers in Queensland and in particular our resident superstar Jess Hamer, along with an introduction to our Ecology team and what they do.

Lastly, there's an article about our long term partnership with the Waiheke Walking Festival, one of the many beautiful parts of our respective countries that we support.

Until I next see you in person, stay safe and look after yourselves.

All the best

James Fletcher,
Treescape® CEO

New ISO Standard

Treescape® achieved ISO 45001:2018 Occupational Health and Safety Management Systems certification in June this year.

This ISO standard is the world's first global health and safety management system which was launched in New Zealand in 2018.

We are proud to be an early adopter of this higher level certification in New Zealand, which is a point of difference in the Arboriculture industry.
